ARE THE CHILDREN HOME?

"It is night! Are the children home?"
Each day, when the glow of sunset
Fades in the western sky,
And the wee ones, tired of playing,
Go tripping lightly by,
I steal away from my husband,
Asleep in his easy chair,
And watch from the open doorway
Their faces fresh and fair.

Alone in the dear old homestead,
That once was full of life,
Ringing with girlish laughter,
Echoing boyish strife,
We two are waiting together,
And oft, as the shadows come,
With tremolous voice he calls me,
"It's night! Are the children home?"

"Yes, love," I answer him gently,
"They're all home long ago,"
And I sing in my quivering tremble
A song so soft and low,
Till the old man drops to slumber
With his head upon his hand,
And I tell myself of the number
At home in a better land.

Home, where never a sorrow
Shall dim their eyes with tears,
Where the smile of God is on them
Through all the Summer years;
I know, yet my arms are empty
That fondly folded seven,
And the mother heart within me
Is almost starved for heaven.

Sometimes, in the dusk of evening,
I only shut my eyes,
And the children are all about me,
A vision from the skies.
The babes whose dimpled fingers
Lost the way to my breast,
And the beautiful ones the angels,
Passed to the world of the blest.

A breath and the vision is lifted
Away on the wings of light,
And again we two are together,
All alone in the night.
They tell me his mind is failing,
But I smile at idle fears,
He is only back with the children,
In the dear and peaceful years.

And still as the Summer sunset
Fades away in the west,
And the wee ones, tired of playing,
Go trooping home to rest,
My husband calls from his corner,
"Say, love, have the children come?"
And I answer, with eyes uplifted,
"Yes, dear, they are all at home."

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

From Listowel to Virginia City, Nevada—Graphic Description of Scenes by the Way—Interesting Letter from a late Resident of Perth.

EDITOR STANDARD:—Having received an intimation from you that a descriptive letter would be accepted on the event of my arrival here, I heartily comply, hoping that the sketch which I am about to give will be one of interest to your many readers, and contribute in some measure to the literature of your valuable paper. In order not to occupy too great a volume of your worthy space, I shall try to be as brief as possible; passing over all points except those of the deepest interest, which not only attract the attention and inspire the awe of an ordinary observer, but also awaken the drowsier sensibilities of the obtuse. Starting out alone, as I did, one could not anticipate so pleasant a trip as if favored with agreeable company; however, before I had journeyed very far, I was fortunate enough to enjoy the society of a few well-informed young men who had been over the route before, and who were making a return trip to the Pacific coast. From them I received much information regarding points of interest, by the way, which made the trip on the whole very enjoyable. As we continued our westward course, our little company kept increasing in numbers, and by the time we reached Omaha, a jolly dozen of us had introduced ourselves to each other, and I was feeling like congratulating myself over the fact that I was not alone after all.

Without dwelling on the beauties of Canadian scenery, with which your readers are familiar, I will pass over the border and continuing my westward course, through the States of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, I could see nothing worthy of note till I came to the Mississippi river, broad and majestic, which is spanned by an immense bridge, about a mile in length, at Burlington, in the State of Iowa. Passing onward through this State, we are soon in sight of the city of Council Bluffs, which is located about three miles from the Missouri river, and contains a population of about 15,000. Its record dates from as early a period as 1804, when the celebrated explorers, Lewis and Clark, held a council with the Indians; which fact, together with the physical peculiarities of the high bluffs overlooking the town, has given it its name—Council Bluffs. A few miles further on we reach the famous Missouri river bridge, spanning the river, which is a fitting entrance to the wonders beyond—a mechanical wonder of itself, it fills every traveler with with a sense of awe and majesty, as the first great scene of the overland journey. Looking westward from the bridge we see Omaha, which occupies an exceedingly beautiful situation, bold and commanding. Omaha is the grand gateway through which the western tide of travel and immigration is passing, in search of what may be found, either for amusement, pleasure or profit, farther west. It is the halfway house and resting place for those who are weary of continual travel, and has sufficient attractions to render a visit profitable and interesting. Having rested and visited the principal points of interest in Omaha, we are now ready to take a fresh start. From this point onward I was pleased to find gentlemanly officials on board the train, who were ready to give any information and cheerfully answer questions.

The rushing train is now bearing us over mile after mile of Nebraska prairie land, and soon we reach the Great Platte valley, of which the Nebraska people are justly proud. At Fremont it spreads out wonderfully, and for the first two hundred miles varies in width from five to fifteen miles. Through nearly all its eastern course this river hugs the bluffs on its northern side. These bluffs, as well as those more distant on the southern side of the valley, are plainly visible from the cars. Before the road was built this valley was the great highway of overland travel to Colorado, California and Oregon. Immense trains of wagons, heavily freighted, are said to have passed over it in their slow and tedious journeyings toward the setting sun. The luxuriant grasses and the proximity to water made this the favorite route. It has also been the scene of deadly conflicts with the savages, and the bones of many a wanderer lie bleaching in the air, or are buried beneath some rough and hastily made mound near the beaten track. But a wonderful change took place with the advent of the road. Beautiful as these prairies are in early Summer, when their luxuriant grasses clothe the vast expanse in green, their dull drab color before vegetation commences is monotonous and weary to the gaze. After passing over two hundred miles without a change of scenery since we left Omaha, we arrived at Elm Creek. In these two hundred miles we have attained an altitude more than a thousand feet above Omaha, where we started, and yet the ascent has been so gradual that we have scarcely noticed it. After crossing the North Platte river, the road still follows the South Platte, which is similar to the former, as far as external observations go. The hand of the Almighty has placed its ineffaceable mark upon all this vast region of country. These plains must become the great beef producing region of the continent. They are really excellent pasture grounds, and if there are not a thousand cattle upon a hill, there will surely be "cattle upon a thousand hills."

Onward we pass rapidly, and are soon in the vicinity of Prairie Dog city. The little village of prairie dogs, which are seen frequently by passengers from the car windows soon after leaving Sidney, and line the track for miles, are full of curious features of animal life. Ladies clap their hands and children shout for glee at the sight of these cunning little creatures. It is a pretty animal, curious in shape, always fat, greyish red in color, about sixteen inches in length, and always lives with a multitude of its companions in villages. The scene presented in one of these dog villages is very curious. The prairie dog is no less inquisitive than timid. On the approach of an intruder the little creature gives a sharp yelp of alarm and dives into its burrow, its example being at once followed by all its neighbors. For an instant the village appears to be deserted; but soon their curiosity gets the better of their prudence, and their inquisitive little noses are seen protruding from their burrows, a curiosity which often costs them dear.

Leaving the prairie dogs to their fate we glide swiftly along and are soon borne to Cheyenne, "the magic city of the plains." Thus truly is it named, for it is at present the most active and stirring city on the whole line. It is a good place to rest after a tiresome journey, and it would pay to stop a few days and enjoy the pure air and genial sun in this high altitude of 6,000 feet above the sea. But we must be advancing, so onward we go at a moderately slow pace, upgrade till we arrive at Sherman, which is the summit of the Rocky Mountains, and the highest point on the road, the elevation being 8,200 feet. At one time this was the highest railroad point in the world, but there are higher places now reached by rail in South America. Though the elevation is so great, it has been reached by an assent so gradual that we have scarcely noticed it.

Once over the summit, we are going at a brisk down-grade speed into some of the grandest scenery on the route, viz: that along the Green river; but to our sorrow, all is hidden from our gaze in the silent stillness of the night. However, the next day breaks upon our view with some of the grandest scenes. The celebrated natural curiosity "Devil's Gate," is soon reached. It is the entrance to a canyon which the Sweet-water river has worn through the granite ridge, cutting it at right angles. We shall soon enter Echo and Weber canyons, and now, with the full breath of an anxious heart, repressed excitement and keen zest, we anxiously scan the scenes from car-windows or platforms and prepare for one grand rushing descent into the glories of Echo canyon. We shall never forget the feelings of overwhelming wonder and awe, as with the seal of admiration on both eye and lips, the ride through this famous canyon is enjoyed. Rocks beside which all eastern scenes were pigmies, rise up in astounding abruptness and massiveness; sublimely soaring summits and perpendicular sides succeeded each other for miles; and the little company of spectators seemed but an insignificant portion of the handiwork of the Almighty. The train of cars which on the plain seemed so full of life and grand in power, here was dwarfed into a baby carriage; and the shriek of the whistle as it echoed and resounded along the cliffs, or from rock to rock, or was hemmed in by the confines of the ampitheatre, appeared like entering the portals to the palace of some terrible being. Into the short distance of sixty miles is crowded a constant succession of those scenes and objects of material curiosity which form the most interesting part of the road, and have made it world-wide in fame. It seems hard, after nearly a week of expectation and keen anxiety for a glimpse of such scenes of grandeur, to find all the most magnificent objects of interest crowded into so short a space, and passed in less than four hours.

Leaving Echo canyon, and as we enter Weber, the eye encounters "Pulpit Rock," so-called from its resemblance to an old-fashioned pulpit. Tradition has it that the late "Prophet of the Lord," who formerly presided over the church of "Latter Day Saints" in Salt Lake City, once preached to an assembled multitude from this exalted position; but, while I dislike to spoil a story that lends such a charm to the place, and clothes it with historic interest, I must say, according to reliable history, such is not the fact. Echo canyon has but one fault; its sublimity will make all similar featutes look tame. Passing swiftly down Weber valley, we soon reached the "thousand-mile tree." There it stands, spreading its arms of green, from one of which hangs the sign which marks the distance traveled since we left Omaha. It is passed in a moment, and other objects of interest claim our attention. The "Devil's Slide" is now in full view, and is one of the most singular formations to be seen on the entire route, from ocean to ocean. It is composed of two parallel ledges of granite rock, turned upon their edges, serrated and jutting out in places fifty feet from the mountain side, and about fourteen feet apart; height about 800 feet—rather a long slide for any one, and I venture to say a rough one. The gap begins to open in the west and we emerge from one of the grandest scenes in nature into the lovely valley below, reclaimed by the hands of men from the barren waste of a desert and made to bud and blossom as the rose.

We now pass along quite a distance without noticing anything of importance till we come to a vast expanse of water, which we discover to be the Great Salt Lake, along the shores of which we ride for several miles. Again a monotonous tableland scenery meets our view, and nothing attracts our attention until we come to the "Maiden's Grave." Tradition says that she was one of a party of emigrants from Missouri, and that at this place, while they were in camp, she sickened and died. Her loving friends laid her away to rest in a grave on this point of land in plain sight of the valley for miles in either direction. But while her remains were crumbling into dust, and she too was fading from the memory of all, perhaps, but her immediate relatives, the railway men came along and found the low mound and the decayed headboard that marked her resting place. With that admiration of and devotion to a woman which characterizes American citizens, they made a new grave and surrounded it with an enclosure—a picket fence painted white—and by the side of it erected a cross, the emblem of the Christian faith, which bears on one side of it this legend, "The Maiden's Grave," and on the other, her name, "Lucinda Duncan."

Arriving at Reno we change cars and take the Virginia and Truckee Railroad to Virginia City. The road runs first to Carson city, the capital of the State, thence to Virginia. Leaving Reno, the first scene of note is the celebrated Steamboat Springs, where the water at the temperature of 212 deg., Fahrenheit (boiling point), gurgles up through fissures in the rock about a foot in width. In the immediate vicinity, not more than twenty feet distant, are cold water springs.

The railroad from Carson city to Virginia city is spoken of as the "Crooked Railroad," it is so full of crooks and windings. This is believed to be the road of which it is said that an engineer, badly frightened at the approach of a red light, jumped from his engine, and soon saw that he had been frightened by the rear end of his own train. The road makes one of these curves round American Flat, on the other side of which is seen the city of Gold Hill.

As the traveler approaches, he sees evidences of mining in every direction. Abandoned shafts, puffing engines, smoke issuing from gigantic stacks, huge mounds of earth dumped from the end of high trestle work, need no explanation as to their origin or purpose. Gold Hill has a population of 7,000, and is in all respects like Virginia city. The two are built up so as to be without marked separation. The former has three churches—Catholic, Methodist and Episcopal.

Virginia city is one of the most interesting cities on the coast. In October, 1875, it was almost wholly destroyed by fire, but the disaster has shown what energy there is in the people, and it is all rebuilt better than ever. On many levels, down 1,500 feet, are hundreds of busy, bustling narrow streets, over which is the city proper. Situated as it is on the side of Mount Davidson, dwellings on the side-hill overlook one another without any appearance of aristocratic pretensions, and steps and foot-ladders are continually at hand. The view from the city is picturesque and sorrowfully beautiful. Off to the south and east the eye ranges over a waste of sage brush, and the face of the whole country appears, as one has said, "like the waves of an angry sea, broken the more because they can go no farther." The best view may be obtained by ascending Mount Davidson, which is 2,000 feet above the city and nearly 8,000 feet high, where the city of 15,000 inhabitants may be seen to advantage. As interesting as was the whole concourse of scenery on the way, a trip to the 2,000 feet level of the Consolidated Virginia was, if possible, more enjoyable.

Having given you a description of the principal points of note, you will thank me to conclude, which I cannot do without wishing you every possible success with your new "weekly" and may the "Standard" of education and moral culture be greatly elevated by its healthful influence. A. M. S.

Luck you have to wait for. Pluck is always ready.

MINING LAWS.

Rules and Regulations Pertaining to the Acquirement of Patents—How to Deal with Cross Lodes, Tunnel Rights, Etc.

APPLICATION FOR PATENT.

Where papers have once been filed with the Register and Receiver, they become a part of the record, and can neither be withdrawn nor returned, but must be transmitted to the General Land Office.

An application will be rejected when the description of the premises is erroneous or insufficient.

Application for patent will be rejected because:

First—The notice was published without the knowledge of the Register.

Second—The notice was not published in a newspaper designated as published nearest the claim.

Third—Record title was found defective, and:

Fourth—A previous application had been made for the same premises, which was withdrawn pending suit in court commenced by the adverse claimant.

An application for patent will be rejected when the survey does not accurately define the boundaries of the claim.

Where the claim was not located in accordance with law.

Where several parties own separate and distinct portions of a claim, application for patent may be made by either for that portion of the claim owned by him; but where several parties own undivided interests in a mining claim all should join in an application for a patent.

A person or association may purchase as many placer claims as the local law admits, and embrace them all in one application for a patent.

Two or more lodes cannot be embraced in one application for a patent, except for placer claims embracing two or more lodes within their boundaries.

Papers sworn to before any person purporting to act as a deputy for the Register and Receiver, cannot be recorded as evidence.

In all patents for mining claims situated within the interior boundaries of a town site, a clause is inserted "excepting and excluding all town property, rights upon the surface, and all houses, buildings, structures, lots, blocks, streets, alleys or other municipal improvements not belonging to the grantee herein, and all rights necessary or proper to the occupation, possession and enjoyment of the same."

Publication of the notice must be made in only one newspaper for the period of sixty days.

Notice must be published ten consecutive weeks in weekly newspapers, and in daily newspapers sixty days must elapse between the first and the last insertions.

Where the Register designates the daily issue of a newspaper for publication of notices of a mining application for patent, it is not a compliance with law to change to the weekly edition of the same paper without authority of the Register.

The existence of a salt spring on a tract of land withdraws it from the operation of the homestead and preemption laws. A hearing for the purpose of proving the agricultural character of such land is not allowed. Land containing valuable deposits of slate may be entered under the mining acts.

ADVERSE CLAIMS.

Adverse claimants must file a separate and distinct claim against each application which it is alleged conflicts with the premises owned by such adverse claimant.

The papers in an adverse claim once filed cannot be withdrawn, but become a part of the record.

When an adverse claim has been filed it cannot be amended so as to embrace a larger portion of the premises than that described in the original adverse claim.

An adverse claim must be made out in proper form and filed in the proper local office during the period of publication of the application for the patent to be effective.

It is the duty of the adverse claimant to commence suit in proper form within the required time, and if he trusts to the uncertain medium of the United States Mail, he must abide the consequences should the delay ensue through misfortune or accident. Should the failure to commence suit be the result of corrupt or dishonest action of his attorney, the Interior department cannot redress the wrong.

An adverse claimant should set forth in detail the facts upon which he bases his adverse claim. A statement in general terms embodying conclusions of law, without stating the facts specially will not be considered in evidence.

An allegation of parties to a suit that they compose the company is sufficient, and they are not required to prove that they are the original locators or the identical parties who presented the adverse claim.

AGRICULTURAL OR MINERAL LAND.

Where land is of little if any value for agricultural purposes, but is essential to the proper development of mining claims, it should be disposed of only under the mining act.

Where lands containing valuable mineral deposits have been included in an agricultural entry, said entry will be cancelled at any time prior to issuance of patent, upon satisfactory evidence of the existence of such valuable deposits.

Where valuable deposits of mineral are discovered upon a tract after the same has been entered as agricultural, but before the patent has been issued, the parties claiming the mine may make application for patent for same, and the agricultural entry will be cancelled to that portion of the land embraced by said mining claim.

Where mineral deposits are discovered on agricultural lands after the patent has been issued to an agricultural claimant, they pass with the patent.

Agricultural college scrip cannot be received in payment for claims.

ALIENS.

A foreigner may make a mining location and dispose of it, provided he becomes a citizen before disposing of the mine. Proof that the party was not a citizen before disposing of his claim must be affirmatively shown.

Locators and intermediate owners other than applicants will not be presumed aliens in the absence of allegation or objection prior to issuance of patent.

The portion of a mining claim sold to an alien can not be patented while such owner is an alien, but, on his declaration to become a citizen, his right dates back to his purchase, and he may thereupon secure United States patent for his claim.

CROSS LODES.

Revised Statutes. Section 2,336.

Where two or more ledges cross or intersect each other, priority of location shall govern, and such prior location shall be entitled to all ore or mineral contained within the space of intersection; but the subsequent location shall have the right of way through the space of intersection for the purposes of the convenient working of the mine. And where two or more veins unite, the oldest or prior location shall take the vein below the point of union, including the space of intersection.

TUNNELS.

There is no authority of law for a tunnel location 3,000 by 1,500 feet. A proper location is the width of the tunnel for 3,000 feet.

There is no provision of law for patenting tunnel locations, but lodes discovered in running a tunnel may be patented in like manner as other lodes.

The right is granted to tunnel owners to 1,500 feet of each blind lode, not previously known to exist, which may be discovered in their tunnel.

When a lode is struck or discovered for the first time in running a tunnel, the tunnel owners have the option of recording their claim of 1,500 feet all on one side of the point of discovery or intersection, or partly on one side thereof and partly on the other.

Prospecting for blind lodes is prohibited on the line of a located tunnel, while the tunnel is in progress, but other parties are in no way debarred from prospecting for blind lodes or running tunnels, so long as they keep without the line of such tunnel.

MINING REVIEW.

SATURDAY... .....AUGUST 30, 1879.

C. W. Crane, Room 3, Safe Deposit Building, has been appointed Agent for the LAKE MINING REVIEW in San Francisco. All orders delivered to him or contracts made for subscriptions or advertising will be recognized by the publishers.

HENRY CLUSKEY, Manager.

THE BLESSING OF COOL WATERS AND WOODS.

Under the above the Virginia City Enterprise comments as follows: "There is no disputing the fact that Nevada wears out people fast. There is not a spot on earth where the minds of men are kept on a more perpetual strain than right here in Virginia City. There are few old men here. People talk justly in praise of the vigorous and pure air of this mountain city, and yet it is not a place to make old bones in," etc. On reading the article referred to, we send up a prayer of thankfulness for the blessings of our surroundings. Providence has showered upon us all that can be desired in beauty of scenery, magnificent forest, grand mountains, covered with vegation, beautiful lakes, abundance of water without having to pay a grasping monopoly extravagant prices for its use. Wood by the cord can be procured by stepping out of doors, axe in hand, without having to pay $12 and $16 per cord. Fish five miles distant, on the north fork of the San Joaquin, can be caught by the hundred pounds, beautiful mountain trout; eight miles distant, deer and bear can be brought down, all for the trouble of going after, and which are frequently brought to our market. While standing at the middle dam, we view a chain of six beautiful lakes within fifteen or twenty minutes walk of Mammoth City. Forests all around, wild flowers in profusion, mountains towering above us, offering a scene of beauty and grandeur that cannot be surpassed in any other part of the world. Can we help being thankful at our prospects in the near future, and our surroundings? Let us take advantage of this, and close our business houses and suspend work on Sundays, fill our lunch baskets, take a row on the lakes, cross over and ramble through the woods, gather wild flowers, leave business cares behind, and give ourselves up to the enjoyment of these blessings which God has given us. Follow the advice of our sister city, run away to the lakes and tree-covered mountains, you will be just as rich at the end of the year. If you do, it will make you better morally, mentally, physically and wont hurt you financially.

MINING—WHAT TO DIG FOR.

For several months past there has been going on a steady and rapid increase of the interest in mining. Whatever difference of opinion may prevail among financiers as to the relative value of gold and silver for the purposes of currency. There is no difference among miners as to the value of both these materials to them when found easily accessible and in large quantities.

It is to be hoped that this revival of mining is not wholly of a speculative character, and that many of the present ventures rest on a more substantial foundation than those by which a large number of persons were impoverished a few years ago. And one reason for confidence in this hope is the great improvement which has been made in the processes for working the ore.

But, however, it may turn out with mining for silver and gold, there is one kind of mining in which every young man in the country should take the deepest interest: we mean the mining for knowledge. For this to dig without tiring, by night and by day, is sure to be adequately rewarded. "Receive my instructions," says the inspired writer, "and not silver; and knowledge rather than choice gold. For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared with it."

The MINING REVIEW says there are no pretty faces in Lake District. The Mammoth City Herald says Lake District is full of them. From this it is evident that the Herald man is the possessor of a mirror, and that the REVIEW man does not include one of those useful and entertaining articles in his journalistic kit.—S. F. Exchange.

We have received the first number of the LAKE MINING REVIEW, that has been printed at Mammoth City. John F. Kopp is the publisher, and Henry Cluskey, manager. It is newsy and makes a good appearance, and we trust our Lake friends will give it a generous support.—Bodie Chronicle.

DE YOUNG AND KALLOCH.

During the past week the papers have been teeming with news concerning the shooting of Kalloch by Chas. De Young. While we believe one to be as deep in the mud as the other is in the mire, we do not propose to comment at length on the matter, as we have no serious personal feeling in the much-to-be-regretted affair. We prefer to leave it to the courts to adjust, when the true merits of the case will be made public.

Bloody Canyon District.

Mr. W. A. Haight, of Pine City, and Mr. O. Fuller, of San Francisco, have located several claims at the head of Bloody canyon on the western slope of the Sierras, twenty-eight miles east of the Yosemite. These claims were located last June. They have just returned from a prospecting tour to the above named district, which resulted favorably as the following assays show, taken from one of half a dozen locations. The Golden Crown shows an assay of from $143 to $201 per ton at a depth of four feet; the ledge has a width of twenty-five feet or more. The four principal locations are the Golden Crown, Mt. Dana, New Brunswick and New York. The croppings can be traced a distance of four miles. We have seen some of the rock, which we are satisfied is all that is claimed for it. Some of the specimens will go $160 in gold. These ores are what we call antimonical silver ores, and we are informed grow more free as they go down. The pack train which was seen at Pine City Sunday, comprising a dozen jacks, has been chartered by contract to pack a ton of the rock, to be taken to the Yosemite, and thence by teams to the railroad to San Francisco. This ore, it is said, will not work less than $200 per ton. The distance from Pine City to the new district is about thirty-three miles by trail and sixteen miles distant on an air line. We congratulate the gentlemen on their find, and hope they may succeed in bringing their district into favorable notice, thereby opening a large and favorable mineral belt which has all the advantages in the way of wood and water to assist them in prosecuting their work to advantage.

True Blue Mine.

This mine is working with a full force; all the work is being done on main tunnel, which is now in 135 feet. Some fine seams of quartz are being crossed. Face of tunnel is now in basalt rock, quite hard, but breaks well. Indications denote vein close at hand. The croppings show fine ore in this mine. Immense quantities of ore in sight.

If you want fire works of all kinds for the moonlight picnic, such as Roman candles, blue lights, rockets, etc., etc., go to John F. Kopp's news depot.

GOOD-BYE, PROFESSOR.

A Pleasant Social Gathering of Prof. Stewart's Friends—And a Hearty Indorsement from the Pioneers.

[Virginia Chronicle.]

Last evening there was a very pleasant farewell reception to Professor W. Frank Stewart at the residense of Mrs. David James, 138 North B street. The Professor is averse to anything like "receptions," and a little trickery had to be resorted to in order to secure his attendance. Mr. James told him that Mrs. James expected him to make a farewell call that evening, and the old geologist, whose gallantry age has not affected, called at 8 o'clock. He was somewhat taken aback of finding a company of friends ready to receive him round a table loaded with refreshments. There were present Hon. R. M. Daggett and C. C. Goodwin of the Enterprise, Colonel Robert H. Taylor, Major E. B. Stonehill, James McCourt, Robert E. Lowery, Alex. Brisacher, J. W. Plant of the Stage, and a reporter of the Chronicle. All present were all personal friends of the Professor, and for a couple of hours the wine and mirth flowed in equal quantities, and about three speeches apiece all round were made.

PROFESSOR STEWART SPEAKS.

In response to a toast the Professor remarked that his mission in the East was to enlighten the inhabitants of the Atlantic seaboard regarding the resources of the Pacific slope. He believed that the people of the East had never as yet held in proper estimation the agricultural, mineral and commercial resources of the country, and were in the dark regarding its educational and social status. They held the most exaggerated ideas of Nevada and California, imbibed from the peripatetic scribblers of the Eastern press, who make flying trips to the coast and write about the country before knowing the points of the compass. He should endeavor to tell the people of the East what he knew of the Pacific coast, after a residence of thirty years here, and he would tell them only the truth.

The company drank a parting bumper with the Professor, and then one or two more to the health of the host and hostess, after which they dispersed.

Professor Stewart will leave this evening in company with Alex. Brisacher, who is the financial manager of the lecturing enterprise. They will proceed directly to New York and make their headquarters at the Astor House.

A SOLID INDORSEMENT.

The following indorsement is by the officers of the Pioneer Society:

VIRGINIA, Nev., August 15, 1879.

Professor W. F. Stewart, Librarian of the Society of Pacific Coast Pioneers—Dear Sir and Brother: At a regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Pioneers, held at their hall, in this city, on July 24, 1879, it having been announced that it was your intention to leave the State of Nevada for a lecturing tour in the Atlantic States, it was on motion, voted that in token of the Society's regard for you as a citizen, its estimation of your abilities, and its appreciation of your eminent services to the Society as a member and officer, a document expressing these sentiments should be prepared, to be signed by the officers of the Society, and presented to you previous to your departure.

In cheerful compliance with the vote above referred to, we beg to assure you of the affectionate and brotherly interest felt for you by all the members of the Society of Pacific Coast Pioneers, and, on behalf of the Society, to thank you for the unremitting and numerous valuable services which you have rendered to the Society, both as a member and an officer of it.

The Society sends with you its good wishes, for yourself personally, and for your success in the undertaking of imparting to our Eastern neighbors correct and reliable information concerning the mineral resources of Nevada, feeling well satisfied of your entire ability to do so, from the extensive and exhaustive examinations you have made in that field of inquiry.

In the hope that your visit to the Atlantic States may prove every way a success, and with the assurance that a warm, friendly greeting awaits you here upon your return, we remain very sincerely and fraternally yours,

LOST IN THE SIERRAS.

Detective Shaw's Ride Across the Sierras—Two Days and Nights Without Food—Thrilling Adventures, Etc., Etc.

Detective Shaw, of Harry Morse's Agency, left Mammoth City on the morning of the 20th instant for Fresno Flats, over the trail, without a guide. Early in the morning of the first day out he missed the trail, and wandered over the mountains and gulches for two days and nights without food. He struck the south fork of the San Joaquin river toward night of the first day out, crossing the stream with his horse, on a large pine tree, which had been felled across the river. Having accomplished this difficult feat, he went up the mountain fully 12,000 feet above the level of the sea. When about half way up, his horse became entangled in his bridle and fell, rolling fully 150 feet down the mountain side, lodging against a pine tree, which saved him from going over a precipice 5,000 feet deep, into the river below. After getting his horse upon his feet again and into the narrow trail, he continued his perilous journey to the top of the mountain. It must be remembered that the trail is very indistinct; that it winds around the mountain, and over rocks, down into gulches of almost unfathomable depths. Arriving on top of the mountains, he lost the trail entirely, in consequence of the mountain sheep obliterating all traces of it. Here began his wanderings over the mountains, until darkness put a stop to further efforts to find the lost trail, when he camped for the night. He was fortunate in having his blankets with him, but unfortunate in not having provided himself with food. The morning of the second day was spent in the endeavor to find the trail, and at about 11 o'clock his perseverence was rewarded. He then concluded to retrace his steps to Mammoth City, instead of pursuing his journey over an unknown trail. He arrived here on the night of the 21st entirely worn out, and fully prepared to enjoy a good square meal. Taken all in all, Mr. Shaw thinks this was the roughest ride it has ever been his misfortune to experience, and he declares that next time he undertakes such a trip he will place himself under the charge of a guide. After recuperating himself, Mr. Shaw left for Fresno Flats on the morning of the 22d, in charge of French's Saddle Train.

That Dog!

An amusing incident took place during the past week, to Mr. Pat Lydon, one of our gentlemanly and efficient officers, resulting in a loss to him to the tune of $40, which he bears with good grace. Pat has been looking for a dog, and a friend learning the fact presented him with one last Monday evening, impressing him with the good qualities the canine possessed, which were innumerable. Pat took the dog, believing himself fortunate in coming into possession of one having such rare qualities. He took him to the jail and locked him up for the night for safe keeping. Pat asked his friends up to take a drink on the strength of his possession. About 10 o'clock P. M., Pat heard considerable noise coming from the jail, and on going in he noticed things scattered about as though a terrible struggle had taken place. One mattress torn to pieces, with contents scattered about, two pairs of blankets chawed up, a coat that had been hanging on a nail was taken from its place and torn in strips, three shirts damaged beyond repair, a feather pillow damaged and a battery of three revolvers dragged from the head of the bed and scattered over the floor. On noticing all this confusion and damage, Pat's ardor was dampened; his opinion of the dog grew less, and the next moment his hand nerviously grasped his six-shooter, sending the contents of one of the chambers at the dog. With a yelp the dog was out of sight in the dark. When last last seen he was gnawing a bone in the middle of the road as though nothing had happened. Pat don't want any more dogs.

A Surveyor's Opinion of Mammoth.

Gott Haist, the surveyor, returned from Mammoth district last evening, where he has been engaged in surveying mining claims for the past few months. In that capacity he had a chance to get a pretty good idea of the value of the mines in that district. He thinks they will yet become noted among the leading mines of the coast, although thus far they have been developed but little.—Virginia Chronicle, August 26th.

As seen by the above, our old time friend left us by last Sunday's stage on professional business to Virginia City. Mr. Haist has made many friends here who hope for his early return.

Lake View Picnic.

The picnic last Sunday was a scene of pleasure and enjoyment. Everybody went that could go, the towns of Mammoth and Pine being almost deserted. The grounds were crowded with ladies and gentlemen in anticipation of the first boat race to come off. People attended from Mill City and Mineral Park, and we also noticed gentlemen from Aurora and Bodie. Everybody had a good time and there was nothing to mar the enjoyment of the day. The "J. D. Collins" crew of oarsmen were, F. Murray, John Mathews, J. C. Bunker, Dick Tone; Mayo Greenlaw, coxswain, of the Argonant boat club of Mammoth City. The "Herald" crew consisted of Messrs. John McCarthy, and Fred Mitchell, pulling double sculls, and Mr. R. F. Bartlett, coxswain. The race, which took place at 4:30 P. M., was to a point across the lake and back, distance about a mile and a half, and was won by the "J. D. Collins;" Time 5:30. Among the noticeable improvements on the grounds were two swings. The music was furnished by Curt Ober and Glenn Bros., and was all that could be desired. Dancing was kept up till dark. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. McCarthy for the pains taken in making this the resort of pleasure seekers. He is making continual improvements for the comfort of his guests.

Omitted.

In our last issue we accidentally omitted an important worker at the Mammoth mill; the man of heavy work, Mr. James De Lorie. His is dangerous work, and of no less importance than any one we have mentioned. Any heavy timbers to be put in place, and there are not a few of them, Mr. De Lorie is the man to boss the job. If you want an engine or a boiler put in place, or a smoke-stack set—work that requires good judgment and careful handling—Mr. De Lorie is called to attend the job. If you want a Scott & Echard governor or an O'Niel patent cut-off set on the top of a smoke-stack, a job that requires the keenest judgment and most careful handling, you want to call on an editor in his sanctum, a mile and a half off, and there you will find him watching the process through his goggles. Bogart knows how. Mr. De Lorie evidently understands his business and is said to have been connected with building some of the heaviest and most important bridges in the West, his services being most invaluable. The company are fortunate in securing this able and reliable engineer.

Welcome.

Our usually quiet town was enlivened last week by the advent in our midst of several candidates for office. We had the pleasure of shaking by the hand, W. O. Parker, candidate for District Attorney, Ben. H. Miller, candidate for County Clerk, M. D. Kelly, candidate for Sheriff. The above named gentlemen are the regular nominees on the Democratic county ticket. P. B. Taylor, present Sheriff, and independent candidate for re-election, accompanied by the clever Ben. Detmar, also paid our town a visit. During their sojourn amongst us they made many friends by their gentlemanly behavior, and won many votes by their genial manners. Come again, gentlemen, after election.

Take Your Choice.

The following is a list of candidates for office of our resident citizens on the different tickets, which we publish for the benefit of those interested.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Justices of the Peace—James Lowery, Judge J. M. Eddy.

Constables—Ben. F. Bartlett, Michael Cody.

Supervisor—J. M. Rice, of Mineral Park ranch.

WORKINGMEN'S TICKET.

County Clerk—Henry D. Bequette.

Justices of the Peace — James Wales.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Justices of the Peace — James Wales (endorsed by the Workingmen's ticket), A. J. Gould.

Constable—Wm. Blackmore, John Pattie.

Assessor—Charles Schuman.

The Nichol Gold and Silver Mining Company has incorporated under the laws of California, to operate in Lake district. Number of shares, 100,000; capital stock, $10,000,000. Directors, A. H. Rutherford, P. H. Mohrhardt, F. M. Adams, H. Mayers and S. M. Holmes.

Our readers will find an interesting letter on the first page of this issue, from the pen of our worthy townsman, A. M. Stewart.

LETTER FROM DR. ROWELL.

Letter from Dr. Chester Rowell, Republican Candidate for the State Senate.

The following letter, addressed to our well known fellow citizen, A. B. Anderson, Esq., was handed in for publication. The letter speaks for itself, and we publish it with pleasure:

FRESNO, August 20, 1879.

FRIEND ANDERSON:—Your letter with congratulations is received. I am glad to hear from you and to know that you are located in the center of what seems destined to be the most important mining region in the world. I had arranged to start to-day for a visit to Mammoth and Bodie, but the sudden sickness of my wife, who you well remember has long been an invalid, will prevent my going to Mono county till after election. If I should be so fortunate—or unfortunate—as to be elected Senotor from this district, I shall visit every county and study well every interest and industry and become acquainted with the people and their wants. These are turbulent times in finance and in politics. Labor is dissatisfied, capital is frightened, and the people no longer trust their political leaders. A grave responsibility will rest upon the next Legislature and the State Government. The people are demanding a great deal; they have long been betrayed, and have a right to demand much. To put in operation the new organic law of the State; to relieve the people from the gigantic evils and oppressions that have fixed themselves upon us; to inaugurate a system of economical and non-partisan administration of public affairs, must be the work of intelligent, industrious and conservative men. I do not flatter myself that I possess every requisite of a good legislator, but I would be more than a wretch should I feel ungrateful for the confidence expressed by the people or betray a trust they may confide to my keeping. Twice the Republicans of this district have tendered me a unanimous nomination for Senator, and now, new Constitution men and Workingmen offer a hearty indersement. My appreciation of such confidence is no less sincere than my determination to perform the duties that may devolve upon me, if elected, with conscientious regard for the interests of my constituents.

Sincerely yours,
CHESTER ROWELL.

WHAT WE KNOW.

All that is necessary for the enjoyment of sausages at breakfast is confidence.

The election comes off Wednesday next. Look your tickets over carefully.

Work has been commenced on the new tramway. Thirty-five men are employed thereon.

James Finley, condidate on the Workingmen's ticket for Sheriff, paid our town a brief visit this week.

Round trip tickets from Nichols' landing to McCarthy's picnic grounds may be had for twenty-five cents.

Boat racing will be the order of the evening on the occasion of McCarthy's moorlight picnic.

John Pattie and Bill Blackmore want their friends to know that their names are on the ticket this election.

Frank Osman, the boss brewer of Lake district, can be found at Rice & Haus brewery at Mineral Park.

Our jail has had no boarders in the past two weeks. This cannot be beat in any town of its size on the coast.

The weather in the last two days has been comparatively cool. Overcoats were brought into requisition.

If not too cold, there will be a grand moonlight picnic at Jerry McCarthy's grounds on Sunday evening.

W. H. Balch announces himself as an independent candidate for Constable of Lake district. Give him a lift, boys.

Don't forget that Judge James Wales is a candidate for Justice of the Peace on the Democratic and Workingmen's ticket. His election is assured.

We are creditably informed that a fine body of ore has been opened up at the Armstrong mine yesterday. More anon.

The Mammoth mill is rapidly approaching completion and by the next issue of the LAKE REVIEW will probably be in running order.

An important strike is reported in the Omega mine, formerly known as the North Monumental. Some of the rock shows free gold.

A petition is going the rounds, and is being numerously signed, praying the Board of Supervisors to establish a hospital at this end of the county.

An accident occurred to the smoke-stack of the Mammoth mill by the breaking of one of the guys, which brought it to the ground. It will be set to-day; damage slight.

Our genial and courteous friend, A. B. Anderson, can be foond at the Monumental hotel, where he is ever ready to entertain his friends in first-class style to all that is good, eatable or drinkable.

The Glenn Bros. have fully established a dancing school in Mammoth city, their gentlemen's class consisting of thirty members. Social next Friday evening.

Wm. A. Saunders, who has been confined to his room at the Mammoth hotel for the last three weeks on account of sickness, is, we are glad to report, able to be around again.

Mr. I. N. Nichols has completed his large boat, which will be launched to-day. The boat will carry thirty persons comfortably, and is a fine piece of workmanship.

An error appeared in our columns of last week in reference to the Don Quixote mine, which should have read as follows: Tunnel in 204 feet; ledge 14 feet wide and assays from $7 50 to $30 per ton.

The Monumental mine has been bonded to Mr. W. A. Hayt, of Pine City, and a force of men will be put to work by the 10th of September next. It is proposed to run a tunnel from the east side of the mountain.

The middle dam was completed last Friday afternoon.. As a piece of skilfull engineering it cannot be surpassed in any country. Mr. George D. Brown, the engineer, is deserving of much credit for the manner in which he has completed his work.

B. N. Lowe has bonded the Alpha mine to Wm. Hickman, of San Francisco, for $30,000. This is one of the finest mines in the district and we congratulate friend Lowe on his good fortune. Four assays made by C. W. Ober, of the Mammoth mine, give the following result: $251, $227 50, $105.-11, $157 08. This gives an average of $185 17, which is hard to beat.

New Arrival.

On the 23d instant there was a noisy time in our little burg, caused by the arrival of a daughter to the household of our worthy townsman Mr. Schweiger. We are informed that this is the second event of the kind in Lake since its settlement. We congratulate the parents on this happy event, and we hope good health and prosperity may ever attend them. Happening to drop in Willis & Stewart's drug store and, meeting Mr. Schweiger, we proceeded to congratulate him. Noticing he appeared somewhat embarrassed, we accidentally cast our eyes on the show case and saw the cause. In a moment Mr. Schweiger commenced blushing like a school girl. Space will not permit us to enumerate all the articles of his purchase which were requisite for the use of the new arrival, the most conspicuous being a a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup, a bottle of paragoric, a box of toilet powder, a powder puff and a powder brush. When asked what they were for he blushingly said, "women's fixin's." Not wishing to presume too much on his sensibilities, we wished the happy paterfamilias much happiness.

For Assemblyman.

The Workingmen's County Central Committee have nominated George S. Johnston for the Assembly from Inyo and Mono counties, and Jo. Sheridan for District Attorney, Mr. Miner having declined. In the matter of the Assembly, we think the Committee would have shown better judgment had they endorsed Jo. Wasson for that position. The workingmen are under obligations to Mr. Wasson more than to any dozen other men in this section for bringing this country and its mines to the notice of the mining world, and interesting capital in our mining enterprises. Mr. Wasson is well known in both counties, is popular and will be elected, and it would be a deserved compliment if the Workingmen would withdraw the name of Mr. Johnston and indorse Jo. Wasson.—Bodie Chronicle.

Personal.

Joseph Wasson, Republican candidate for Assemblyman, arrived by Thursday's stage and will remain over till Sunday.

MINING REVIEW.

VISIONS OF NIGHT.

There are mystical sounds in the air to-night,
  There are whisperings soft and low;
There voices of love from the realms of light
That in rapturous tones to me recite
  The music of long ago.

'Tis a loving sister whose face I see,
  And her loving voice I hear;
In love again she looks at me
As in days of old, though I know that she
  Hath gone to another sphere.

There was one I loved with a deeper love
  Than a brother e'er can claim;
Among the noble, true and brave,
On the battle-field he found a grave
  And a soldier's transient fame.

And a sainted mother looking down
  On her weak and wayward son;
And, although I travel life's journey alone,
I feel that around me ever is thrown
  The love of that holy one.

Above me is bending another face,
  Framed in golden hair.
Out on the ocean she sailed alone,
Into the sea of the great unknown,
  Oh, life was cold and bare!

Ah, sweet are the sounds I hear to-night,
  Murmuring soft and low;
Voices of love from the realms of light,
That in rapturous tones to me recite
  The music of long ago.

Bodie Morning News, Aug. 21st:

The new Campbell power press ordered for the News arrived last night, and will be put in place in the new brick building which we are now erecting, corner of Mills and Mono streets. Within two weeks we shall have the satisfaction of receiving our numerous patrons and friends under our own roof, and of printing the rapidly increasing edition of the News on a steam power press. Pretty good work for a paper that "would not last a month." When all ready, we shall be pleased to have our friends, and they embrace the whole community, call upon us in our new quarters.

We are pleased to note the continued success of our old co-laborers, and hope they may ever prosper.

Lazily swinging in the hammock, beneath the shade of the great elm trees, reading the hours away, isn't she a picture of contentment? But it is safe to say that she is mad, mad clean through, because her "pa" wouldn't pay the bills for a Saratoga trip, but Summered in the country, where all the music heard is the "So Boss" and "Haw Gees" of the over-grown farmer's lad, and the cuisine consists of "biled dinners" and "picked-up codfish," fresh from the vine.—New Haven Register.

A Detroit tailor was measuring a lathy-legged young man from the clover districts for a pair of pantaloons, and, getting down on the chap's feet, the tailor inquired: "Will you have spring bottoms?" "Wall," replied the stranger, after a moment of anxious thought, "it's purty late in the year for Spring bottoms, and, as I allers like to be a lettle ahead of the season, I guess you may put on Fall bottoms, and clinch 'em extra for Winter."

A wife wanted her husband to sympathize with her in a family quarrel; but he refused, saying, "I've lived long enough to know that one woman is as good as another, if not better." "And I," retorted the wife, "have lived long enough to know that one man is as bad as another, if not worse."

The Norristown Herald holds that a great many of our modern young ladies resemble the lilies of the field—they toil not, neither do they spin! But they spend a lot of money, and lay around the house and let their mothers do the work. That's the kind of hollyhock they are.

The small boy hurls defiance into the teeth of cholera morbus, and calmly munches his eleventh green apple; but the cholera morbus takes him, all the same, just as if he were mild and gentle and prepared to go, like the boy in the Sunday-school books.—Rochester Express.

"You love me?" echoed the fair young creature, as her pretty head oiled the collar of his Summer suit. "Yes," said he, "you are my own and only—" "Hush!" she interrupted, "don't say that—be original. That sounds too much like a circus show bill."—Rockland Courier.

Never sit down and brood over trouble of any kind. If you are vexed with yourself or the world, this is no way to obtain satisfaction. Find yourself employment that will keep your mind active; and depend upon it, this will force out unwelcome thoughts.

Our sight is the most perfect and delightful of all our senses. It fills the mind with the largest variety of ideas, converses with its objects at the greatest distance, and continues the longest in action without being tired or satiated with its proper enjoyment.

Journalism as a Profession.

[New York Evening Post.]

The Nation, discussing Whitelaw Reid's recent address before the New York Press Association, declares categorically that "journalism is not a profession and can not be made one." In giving its reasons for this conclusion it first says that if journalism is a profession it differs from other professions in this respect, that it "involves the use of a large amount of fixed capital." In further explanation of its position the Nation says:

"A very slight attention to the actual condition of a professional career will show how utterly unprofessional newspaper work must always be. A young man, for instance, who wishes to practice at the bar, knows that if he acquires a certain amount of technical knowledge he will be admitted to advise clients and argue cases. By careful preparation and compliance with established rules he can, with a certain amount of education, be almost confident of a fair success. He is beside charged with important and responsible duties as an officer of court. Journalism holds out no such career as this. Success in it requires a peculiar combination of faculties, a sense of what the public are interested in, combined with a literary faculty and a power of making use of other people's literary faculties, which nobody can acquire by study or imitation. * * * Its (journalism's) importance in modern times arises chiefly from the fact that it furnishes what the world has never had before—a constant medium for argument, explanation, exhortation, criticism and debate by that class which inherits the world's best traditions of thought and conduct, and which before the invention of the newspaper, could speak with but a muffled indistinct voice."

"What would you fellows give if you had a voice like mine?" asked a man who had just been howling an air from "Le Petit Duc" to a crowd this morning. "Give it a rest," responded four men simultaneously. He did.—Virginia Chronicle.

It ain't so much what a man kan lift, as what he kan hang onto, that shows his aktual strength.—Josh Billings.

An American girl at a London ball got warmed up, and remarked to her partner: "I feel a little dewy!"

"This can't be beat," as the man said when he bought the porcelain egg.
